FoolMoon

Come Light Up the Night!

Friday, April 1 (dusk–midnight) ~ Washington St. (betwixt Main and Ashley)

Destination: Washington Street. This sublime moonlit event will feature an enormous procession of hand-made illuminated sculptures carried by throngs of dancing merrymakers threading their way downtown to Washington Street, west of Main, in the heart of Ann Arbor. Pageant participants and revelers alike will dig live music, delicious treats and craft-brewed spirits, a series of experimental films projected onto the built environment, and a unique street-sized, shimmering, shadow-puppet performance.

The Luminary Sculptures: Over the past few weeks, hundreds of townies and gownies have been linking arms, singing Kumbaya, and designing/fabricating a metric boatload of luminary sculptures in preparation for the FoolMoon event.

There's still time to make your very own luminary:

The "Constellation Stations": Bring your luminary (or kazoo / chicken suit / saxophone / what have you) to one of our three "Constellation Stations" (uh, starting points), and join fellow frolickers for the Foolish stroll to W. Washington Street. We will begin gathering around 7:45pm, and the processionals will set off at 8:15pm. Everyone is encouraged to participate.
